ADVENTURE TRAIL

Roll and Read:

R-Controlled Vowels and Tricky Words

Name: _____ Date: _____

Directions

1. Roll a die.
2. Find the column that matches your number.
3. Read the word in that column in Row A. Then roll again for Row B, and keep going to Row D.
4. Cover the word, then spell it without looking (out loud or on paper). Uncover it to check.
5. Put a tally mark or a check next to each word you read correctly.
6. Challenge: use each word you read in a sentence.

Words I Read Correctly

Ways to Play

- Partner race: Both players roll, read their word, and the first correct reader earns a point.
- Write it: Roll, read the word, then write it on a whiteboard or in a notebook.
- Sort it: Collect the words and sort them by spelling pattern (er, ir, ur, ear, ar, or) and by tricky words (Very, Every, Before).

Spell It, Check It!

Roll and read a word from page 1. Write it, cover it, spell it from memory, then check. Four rounds.

For Grown-Ups: Playing Roll and Read

What the game is

Your child rolls a die, finds the matching column, and reads a word. Then they cover the word, spell it from memory, and uncover it to check. They put a check or tally by each word they read correctly.

A short practice session

Ten to fifteen minutes can be plenty, if that suits your child. Stop sooner if they are tired or frustrated. A few words, read happily, is a good day.

How you can help

Let your child try first and wait a few seconds before helping. Praise effort and strategies (“You sounded that out!”). If a word is stuck, say it together and move on. The original sheet calls Very, Every, and Before “tricky words,” so ask the teacher how they would like those practiced.

Good to know

This page is a family guide written for this packet. It is not a substitute for reading instruction or intervention. If reading feels very hard for your child, talk with their teacher.
